It is safe to venture that Paducah never presented a more gaudy appearance than now. She is fairly ablaze with lithographs of Buffalo Bill, Robinson & Franklin's circus and a dramatic company, and the bill posters still come.

Today the following force arrived to put up the last paper for Robinson's circus: W. J. Hutchings, Geo. M. Rose, B. Perrenet, John Foxell, and C. Wright.

"The public like to be humbugged."

is one of the most frequently quoted sayings. That may have been so years ago, but it is not true in all particulars at least, especially in the matter of public entertainments. The public has learned to discriminate and will not be content now with anything that is not real and of the best quality. The phenomenal success of Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the World has proven that proposition beyond a doubt. It is in its very element the real thing, and the public has proved its appreciation by bestowing upon it a patronage quite unparalleled by any sort of another exhibition. Col. Cody has been before the public fourteen years as an entertainer and educator, but he is not yet a showman in the sense of considering it necessary to impose any humbug, or even a make-shift in lieu of reality. Anyone who attends his Wild West exhibitions when they will be given here on Tuesday, Oct. 5, will realize the truthfulness and force of this statement.

"TROLLEY DAY."

There Will Be a Band Concert at La Belle Park.

The ladies are at work to make "Trolley Day" a success, and today Dr. W. F. Long was engaged to furnish the music for the day.

In the evening at La Belle park there will be a first-class band concert.

Col. W. F. Long (Buffalo Bill), the American hero, will arrive at 10 o'clock, and will be met on Tuesday, October 5th. He will bring his world-famous Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the World. No one disputes that this is altogether the most entertaining exhibition so far devised for the public. Its popularity seems to be on the increase rather than upon the wane. No wonder. Everyone realizes that without Buffalo Bill there can be no genuine exhibition of this sort, and to our children's children such an entertainment can only be a tradition, and to ourselves, in our old age, it can only be at best a pleasant memory. It will be almost a barren duty to witness this sterling exhibition.

FORTY-FIRST ANNIVERSARY

Of Paducah's First Legal Hanging.

Thomas Jefferson, an Indian.

Hanged 41 Years Ago Today.

Forty-one years ago today, on Sept. 17, 1856, Thomas Jefferson, an Indian, was hanged near the river bank where the Illinois Central incline now stands.

The hanging was witnessed by hundreds of people and Jefferson expired one of the most heinous crimes having waylaid and ravished a girl near the city while she was on her way to school.

Mr. John Ellis, the blacksmith, said to a reporter this morning that he remembered the event as vividly as it is today.

"I came here in December, 1854," he said, "and in '56 lived on a farm close by the hotel on King and, turning to her, caught her dress and pulled her out of the wagon. I have tried to tell her story and to tell her story, but she has refused to do so. As the big war fell Jenkins landed on top and began to ply his knife, knowing that was his only salvation. The cut screamed and fought him well, tearing his clothes to tatters, her sharp claws drawing blood at every stroke. For several minutes the bloody fight raged, and then the head with a small turned up its nose, a sharp cut in its throat completing the work. Jenkins found that his wagon had turned over and that his wife and babes had been thrown out, but he was not badly hurt. He was very weak from loss of blood.
